Rancho Cucamonga Animal Center's Crowned Pit Idol Becomes Trained Service Dog

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

March 23, 2010

Rancho Cucamonga, California - The community enthusiastically embraced Pit Idol, a unique one-of-a-kind contest to find the most charming Pit Bull at the Rancho Cucamonga Animal Care & Adoption Center. Three hundred and fifty votes were received and the winning pit was crowned earlier this month. Farrah, a sweet, lovely lady won the hearts of the voters as well as an obedience course at Dogs Etc. Dog Training which will be followed by a course to earn a Canine Good Citizen Award from the American Kennel Club.

Farrah's lucky streak did not end there, and on Friday, March 12th, Farrah found a very special home. Not only will she be a cherished family pet but will assist her new owners as a service dog. Both of Farrah's new "parents" require the assistance of walking aids and she will help with their mobility issues. She also will perform a variety of other services such as retrieve dropped items, open doors, and retrieve the phone if either person falls and cannot get up.

-More-

Farrah's new family reported that she quickly bonded with them and accompanies them on all their family outings.

Knowing that Farrah is getting the love and attention she deserves from a caring family and in turn she is giving back to her family in a very special way provides a fairy tale ending for our winning Pit Idol story.

For More Information - For additional information on the services provided or available animals at the Center, please call Animal Services Director Joe Pulcinella at (909) 466-PETS (7387), extension 2091 or visit www.RCPets.info.
